Driver in Peril.
The 4.07 express from Boston for New York, that was late in reaching Willimantic Wednesday afternoon, came near figuring in an accident but for the watchful eyes of Mayor D. P. Dunn and Officer Allan MacArthur, who were riding in the car. The car was about to cross the tracks at the foot of Railroad street for the other side, where the Central Vermont freight depot is situated.

The man was driving along and was apparently on the lookout for anything, and even when the mayor and officer hollered to him to stop he barely had time to check the advance of the heavy train from getting immediately in front of the express as it came crashing into the station at a fast rate of speed at 4.13 o'clock.

The heavy train was pulled up just in time to escape being run into and the speeding cars of the express whizzed by the noses of the pair of horses.

Japan's Weakness.
Japan, which has at so many points modeled its finances over the United States, has followed the American example. This country pays its public debts. Europe does not. The United States has paid over $2,000,000,000 of debt since the war.

Japan began with the determination to pay off its national debt. The Japanese debt was reduced between the Chinese and Russian wars. This greatly aided Japan in raising money when the later struggle required larger issues of bonds. A year ago Japanese bonds 5 per cent, were at 81. They are now 22. No one expected when the English and Japanese alliance was formed, nearly ten years ago, that Japanese bonds would be 10 points above par, even if the former had the higher interest.

For a number of years Japan has devoted $25,000,000 to debt redemption, a very large sum, considering its revenue. But the burden proves too great. Japan is a poor country. Taxation is heavier than in any civilized state in proportion to wealth, except possibly Italy. Military and naval expenses are growing. Payments on the national debt are to be abandoned. This change of policy will have its inevitable effect on the position of Japan. The island empire is to be abandoned. It has not the same resources—Philadelphia Press.
